

Pollution Message is Sent To Congress by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent Congress today a special message on environmental programs, emphasizing waste treatment facilities to fight water pollution and stricter standards and enforcement against both water and air pollution.

Violation of air or water quality standards could be enforced, under Nixon's plans, by fines of up to $10,000 per day.

Nixon proposed giving the federal government authority to control pollution over all navigable waters, not just interstate as it now the case.

He also proposed establishing national air quality standards and to extend that authority also to intrastate situations.

The President's message spelled out his previously announced request for $4 billion in federal grants to aid construction of municipal waste treatment plants, but he shortened the period of allocation from his original aim of five years to four years—a rate of $1 billion a year.

Nixon's plan included establishment of an environmental financing authority to help states and municipalities fund the $6 billion in matching funds which they would need to take advantage of the construction grants.

The authority would fund its own operations by issuing securities of its own.

The federal Treasury would make payments to the authority covering the difference between what it takes in from the communities and what it must pay out in interest on its own bonds.

Nixon's program also proposes a requirement that industries using municipal waste disposal systems pay user fees and that effluent standards be imposed to curb industrial and municipal water pollution.

Similarly, national emission standards were recommended for dangerous air pollutants. He also proposed that the secretary of health, education and welfare be authorized to regulate the composition of gasoline and its additives.

War Defoliants Used in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — A controversial and powerful herbicide used to defoliate the enemy's jungle hiding places in Vietnam has been used even more extensively in the United States to clear away brush from the countryside, according to the Agriculture Department.

The spray, 2,4,5-T, has been shown to cause birth defects in laboratory animals, but is officially recommended by the federal government to rid pastures of brush.

About three million acres of U.S. crop and range land have been sprayed in each of the last eight years with 2,4,5-T. However, most of this, more than two million acres, involves range or pastureland—areas not directly producing food crops.

Government figures cited by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., whose foreign affairs subcommittee recently looked into chemical and biological warfare, showed more than five million acres have been sprayed with the defoliant in Vietnam since 1962.

In 1968 alone, the Agriculture Department paid farmers a total of $8.8 million for brush and weed control on more than 2.6 million acres. Most of it involved 2,4,5-T, according to officials.

Records show payments and acres sprayed have increased steadily under the program during recent years, and officials say privately that needs will continue to be great.

Under the program, farmers can get up to half their costs paid by the government for carrying out approved conservation practices. Among them are two involving brush and weed control, mainly by applying chemical herbicides.

Besides 2,4,5-T, the most frequently used herbicide is the related 2,4-D, which is suspect in the minds of many conservationists.

The Agriculture Department appears to be in a dilemma over pollution control, commitments to farmers and economy measures recommended by the Nixon budget.

Last November Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, White House science adviser, announced the Agriculture Department would outlaw 2,4,5-T on food crops beginning last Jan. 1 if by then the Food and Drug Administration had not set safe tolerances for the chemical in food products. Pasture spraying would continue to be approved.

Support Carswell Rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Policy Council urged today that the Senate reject the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell, saying the appointment should never have been made.

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the council chairman, said any man chosen for the high court "must be devoid of any record of racial bias, intolerance or discrimination."

Humphrey said Carswell does not meet that test.

The policy council, in a catalogue of its views on election year issues, classified Carswell with Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., whose Supreme Court selection earlier was rejected by the Senate.

The policy council questioned President Nixon's plans for action to enhance the environment. "In fact, his budget represents for many programs a retreat from the goals already set by Congress, and for others, no more than a commitment to achieve existing levels."

On the Vietnam war, the council adopted Monday a cautiously worded resolution prepared by retired diplomat W. Averell Harriman, proposing the withdrawal of all American forces from the war zone within 18 months.

The Democrats said Vietnam remains an urgent, divisive, bitter problem, "despite the administration's claims of progress."

About 40 of the council's 66 members voted on the Vietnam statement and a spokesman said there was only scattered opposition.

Expressing support of current troop withdrawals ordered by President Nixon, the Democrats said, however, future pullouts should not hinge on developments within Vietnam but purely on American interests.

The policy council, an offshoot of the party's national committee, said "it is essential to commit the billions now spent on Vietnam to help solve our pressing domestic problems."

School Levy Headlines Meeting

Discussion on a local school tax levy heads the agenda at tonight's Board of Education meeting at Smith-Cotton High School.

A decision on the amount of the levy is complicated by President Nixon's recent veto of the health and education bill and the Blackwell referendum on a state income tax increase, according to the superintendent of schools, Dr. T. J. Norris.

If Nixon's veto results in a cutdown on "impacted area" funds and the state income tax boost is defeated at the polls, then federal and state aid will drop sharply and the school system will have to depend on local taxes to keep operating, Norris said. He added that the board may delay a final decision on the tax until these questions are cleared up. The current levy is $2.82 per $100 assessed valuation.

The Board of Education recently purchased a house at Ninth and Massachusetts and may decide at tonight's meeting to convert it to classrooms and

Two Break Out Of County Jail At Warrensburg

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

WARRENSBURG — Authorities are searching for two men who escaped from the Johnson County Jail early Tuesday morning.

Sheriff Harlan Temple identified the men as Michael Green, 22, 1301 South Ohio, Sedalia, and Donald Wayne Hontz, 22, LaMonte.

The pair escaped from a window on the second floor of the jail by breaking a bar which had been welded together after an escape last October.

Green was in jail on a parole violation and nonpayment of a traffic fine, while Hontz was serving a six-month sentence for petty larceny.

Helicopter Crash Claims American Infantry Unit

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Army helicopter loaded to capacity crashed into a refugee shantytown a mile from its destination in Da Nang today, killing all 12 Americans aboard. The helicopter missed the houses, and no Vietnamese civilians were hurt.

The UH1 Huey was en route from Chu Lai, about 50 miles southeast of Da Nang, to Freedom Hill, a replacement center near 1st Marine Division headquarters. The 12 men aboard included six Army men, five Navy men and a Marine, officials said, and civilian-type luggage found in the wreckage indicated that some of the passengers may have been going on leave or home to the United States.

The cause of the crash was not known immediately, but officials said there was no indication the aircraft had been shot down.

One Vietnamese said he heard an explosion while the helicopter was in the air, looking up, saw its tail boom break off.

The aircraft crashed at the edge of a vegetable patch, about 15 feet from a pink stucco house, flipped over and burned. Its tail boom and rotor blade landed about 50 feet away in the back yard of another house.

A U.S. Marine security force sealed off the area.

A Vietnamese boy living in the shantytown said the craft was "fishtailing" and it appeared the pilot was trying to

German Airport Bombed From Within by Terrorists

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Terrorists launched a grenade attack today on passengers of an Israeli airliner at Munich's Reim airport. One passenger was killed and 11 persons—including two attackers, the pilot and a policeman—were reported wounded.

One passenger who escaped injury was Assaph Dayan, the son of Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. Friends in Tel Aviv said Dayan, a 24-year-old actor, was on his way to London to seek a movie contract.

Conrad Ahlers, West German government spokesman in Bonn, said: "The government regrets this tragedy and vigorously condemns this Arab terrorism against the passengers of the Israeli airline, El Al."

The grenades exploded in an airport lounge and aboard a bus taking passengers to a waiting plane. Hermann Schreiber, head of the Munich police department, gave this account:

Nineteen persons had boarded the bus, which was parked outside the airport's transit terminal. Other passengers were inside the terminal. The pilot and copilot were walking toward the bus when three or four men armed with pistols blocked their path.

A struggle followed, and the driver started the bus and tried to drive away.

One of the armed men jumped onto the bus and threatened the driver, who pressed a release opening the rear door so the passengers could flee.

At this moment, one of the attackers threw one or two grenades into the bus. A firefight then broke out between the attackers and airport police.

It was not immediately determined whether the two injured attackers were wounded by the explosion or police bullets.

Bankers Complicate Multimillion Dollar Swindle of Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities have evidence that two Swiss bankers—fully aware that they were accomplices in a fraud—supplied hundreds of false documents from a string of shadowy companies which became the backbone of a multimillion-dollar swindle of the U.S. government.

With the aid of the bankers, the evidence shows, a group of Americans was able to channel more than $4 million into secret Swiss bank accounts before the fraud was exposed and stopped.

Two Americans who had earlier pleaded guilty to masterminding the fraud — Francis N. Rosenbaum, a prominent Washington attorney, and Andrew L. Stone, a wealthy St. Louis businessman—received 10-year prison sentences today in U.S. District Court here.

Stone's executive secretary, Evelyn Price of St. Louis, and Robert B. Bregman, president of Bregman Electronics Inc., of

New York, each received a five-year prison term. Two companies—the Chromcraft Corp. of St. Louis and Alco Inc. of Akron, Ohio—had previously been fined $5,000.

The $4 million channeled into secret Swiss bank accounts has not been recovered.

The two Swiss bankers were named as co-conspirators but not defendants in the case.

The fraud has received much publicity but the evidence detailing the role of the Swiss bankers has remained in government files.

The case, officials said, is just one example of the hundreds of frauds and tax evasions believed carried out each year with the knowledge and aid of discreet foreign bankers.

Simplified, the case worked this way: Stone and Rosenbaum were officers of a company which was the prime contractor on millions of dollars in Navy defense business.

They set up two dummy companies in the United States and fraudulently represented them as subcontractors on the Navy work. The Swiss bankers supplied those subcontractors with fraudulent bills from other dummy European firms for materials which were never ordered or shipped. The dummy subcontractors then "sold" the non-existent material to the prime contractor who charged the Navy for it.

In paying off the phony Swiss bills, Stone and Rosenbaum were able to siphon the fraudulent overcharges obtained on the defense contracts out of the country.

The money went to the Swiss bankers who routed it into the Americans' secret accounts in Switzerland.

Government officials here say estimating the number of dollars fraudulently channeled into foreign bank accounts each year "defies imagination," but certainly runs into the hundreds of millions.

They say they find it almost impossible to break up such schemes unless someone on the inside cooperates.

The Navy fraud case was broken by Asst. U.S. Atty. Seymour Glazer, chief of the Frauds Prosecutions Unit of the U.S. Attorney's office here. He was able, through court action, to force Swiss banks to open their books and files.

A 30-count indictment was returned in August, 1968, against the six defendants involved in the case. Stone and Rosenbaum pleaded guilty last October to nine counts each and the other defendants to one count each. Each count carried a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

The indictment named as co-conspirators Hans Senn, an officer and director of the Bank Fur Handel und Effekten of Zurich; that bank, and Walter A.

Lips, vice director of the Union Bank of Switzerland branch at Aarau, Switzerland. Lips has since left the Union Bank and opened his own finance and business advisory service. Senn still is employed by the Bank Fur Handel.

Swiss authorities say no charges have been filed against anyone there, but Justice Department sources here say evidence is being turned over to Swiss authorities at their request. Swiss officials refused to comment when asked if an investigation was under way.

Throughout the case, U.S. investigators say, Swiss bank officials seemed more interested in keeping their bank secrecy laws intact than in helping uncover this fraud.

When the American defendants pleaded guilty to parts of the federal indictment here, the other counts were dropped and the matter never came to trial. Therefore few details of the mechanics of the fraud became publicly known.

However, The Associated Press has now obtained documents from the case which federal investigators say is one of the biggest swindles of the United States government in its history.

Between February, 1962, and January, 1967, the Navy awarded more than $47 million in contracts for 2.75-inch rocket launchers for air-to-air ground missiles widely used in Vietnam.

The contracts were awarded on a sole-source basis, that is, to one company without competitive bidding. In the beginning, that company was Chromcraft, which billed itself as "The Distinguished Name in Dinette Furniture."

In June, 1966, Chromcraft and Alco merged, and the St. Louis rocket launcher operation changed its name to the Techfab Division of Alco. Nothing else changed, however, and the Navy continued awarding the contracts to Techfab. The fraudulent overcharging on the defense contracts continued.

Stone and Rosenbaum were the prime movers in the fraud. They created a dummy company in Beverly Hills, Calif., and called it Scientific Electronics, Ltd. The company was nothing more than a desk and a chair and piles of letterhead stationery. It never did any business with or for anyone.

Part way through the four-year fraud, Scientific was dropped and Rosenbaum and Stone replaced it with Bregman Electronics, another dummy company.

Scientific and Bregman were the American front companies for the fraud.

There were five more front companies in Europe: Geag; Elpag, A.G.; Alwatra, A.G.; Infina, A.G. and Etablissement Macoba.

The Swiss bankers' complicity in the fraud can best be shown by following through one example transaction with the Americans.

Among the thousands of documents seized by the Justice Department in connection with the case was an invoice from Macoba, one of the dummy European companies, dated Dec. 1, 1964. It purported to show that Macoba had sold to Scientific Electronics three pieces of equipment at a total price of $10,565.

Three Chromcraft purchase forms, dated Dec. 7, 1964, showed that Chromcraft had ordered the same three pieces of equipment from Scientific Electronics. And there were three Scientific Electronics invoices dated Dec. 14, 1964, billing Chromcraft for the three pieces of equipment at a total cost of $11,000.

But Macoba never shipped

French Snow Avalanche Buries Vacation Center

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — An avalanche of fresh powder snow, unleashed by one of the Alps' worst blizzards in memory, rolled a half mile over cars and through a vacation camp dining room today, killing 42 and injuring more than 50 persons officials reported.

The Swiss Avalanche Research Center in Geneva said the death toll was Europe's highest since 1900. A series of snow slides in Austria in 1954 killed more than 100 people, but in a number of different communities.

The rush of snow into Val d'Isere, pushed by winds up to 60 miles an hour, sucked the roof away from a small hotel, dragged autos 150 yards and ran over concrete walls.

Most of the victims were thought to be young people—French, Belgian or West German—staying at a low-cost vacation center run by the Union of Fresh Air Centers. There were 199 guests at the center and about 50 supervisory personnel.

First reports indicated about 30 of the dead were skiers from the center, caught while eating breakfast. The remaining dozen appeared to be workers at the ski complex.

The avalanche struck at 8:10 a.m., rushing 800 yards down

Cite Northern Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders said today school segregation in the North is as bad as in the South but made no commitment to support Southern-sponsored amendments to a federal aid to education bill.

Both Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and his GOP counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, praised a speech by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Monday saying "the North is guilty of monumental hypocrisy in its treatment of the black man."

"I think it's a good thing he lanced this boil and brought it to the attention of the country," Mansfield told newsmen before the start of today's Senate session.

Scott called Ribicoff's speech "very courageous," adding "it was something of a watershed to have a Northern liberal siding with Southern Democrats."

Before the Senate is an amendment by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and other Southern senators to establish a freedom of choice policy for school attendance.

Scott, who is expected to offer a motion to table the amendment, said he couldn't agree with it and also expressed doubt the Senate would accept a second Stennis amendment to require uniform enforcement of school desegregation throughout the country.

Mansfield said that despite the large number of senators absent in advance of a Lincoln's birthday recess starting tonight, he hoped for at least one vote during the day in the fight over the school aid bill.

Scott, however, said he was skeptical any business could be done by the Senate until after it returns next Monday.

"If Sen. Stennis wants to make honest men of us Northern liberals, I think we should help him," Ribicoff commented.

However, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., declared this second amendment would be "a meaningless, sanctimonious declaration against residential patterns which cause the segregation in the North without doing anything effective about it."

Ribicoff said solution of nationwide racial problems requires jobs and housing for

Reveals Nixon Informed Concerning Calley Trial

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The chief legal officer of this infantry center testified today that the case of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., "had gone to" President Nixon's West Coast White House before charges were filed, but that no instructions on whether to prosecute were sent back.

Col. Robert M. Lathrop, staff judge advocate at Ft. Benning, testified at a pretrial hearing for Calley who is accused of murdering more than 100 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in March 1968.

The defense is trying to establish that command control has affected decisions on whether to try the infantry lieutenant. The U.S. Supreme Court has reversed court-martial convictions where command influence has been shown.

Lathrop testified Monday that he was not influenced by higher command.

On cross-examination today by Calley's chief defense counsel, George Latimer of Salt Lake City, Utah, Lathrop said he was told by Col. William Chilcoat of the Judge Advocate General's office in Washington which led to the charges against Calley "had been sent to San Clemente, Calif., and sent back."

On redirect examination, the prosecution officer, Capt. Aubrey Daniel, asked, "Did you at any time receive any instructions from the President of the United States?"

"No. I did not," Lathrop testified.

Malaysian Businessmen Appreciate Japan

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — "I would never go to Japan as a tourist," a wealthy Malaysian-Chinese businessman said at a party recently. "During the occupation, Japanese soldiers slapped me around and humiliated me."

"Why do I do business with them? Ah, business is business and the Japanese are good at it. Very good indeed."

Just how good the Japanese are is plain to see on the streets of cities throughout Malaysia.

Signs flash multicolored messages extolling the virtues of Japanese rice cookers, tape recorders, cameras and watches. Stores offer full lines of Japanese electronic gadgetry and household ware.

Japan is the leading supplier of goods to Malaysia. In the first half of 1969 it moved ahead of Britain, now in second place, and leads Singapore, Communist China, Australia and the United States, in that order.

As a purchaser, Japan is second only to Singapore, but even that is misleading because many Malaysian products brought into Singapore are bound for immediate transfer elsewhere.

In 1968, Japan sold $104 million worth of goods to Malaysia and bought $343 million worth of Malaysian products, mainly timber, tin, iron ore and rubber.

Japan is also the leading foreign investor, with more than $20 million tied up in pioneer industries. About 30 Japanese-Malaysian joint ventures operate in West Malaysia and seven more in East Malaysia.

When the Singapore government embarked on an industrialization program, Japanese companies moved in.

Today there are more than 30 Japanese-Singapore joint ventures with an estimated paid capital of $12 million.

Singapore-Japanese trade has grown to almost $500 million a year. The ratio is perhaps 3-to-1 in favor of Japan.

Japan is the largest investor in Singapore in terms of capital investment and second only to the United States in the investment of fixed assets.

A former Japanese ambassador to Singapore, Kenichiro Yoshida, recently said, "Japanese businessmen find there are strong incentives to invest in Singapore."

"Labor costs in Japan, Korea and Formosa are rising higher. Fortunately, in Singapore there is a steady level of wages and your labor is abundant."

Meat Loaf Starts Clamor For More

Dear Ann Landers: That lady in Michigan who didn't like your meat loaf recipe should have her head examined. First of all, only a moron would try out a new recipe on guests. I want you to know I made it for my family the day I saw it in The Salt Lake Tribune and everyone said it was the best meat loaf they ever ate. I have orders to make it again next week. — Love You

Dear Love: Please read on. It seems I started something:

Dear Ann Landers: Your meat loaf is delicious. I tried it yesterday and my poker club raved about it. I left off the bacon. My mother-in-law lives with us and I keep kosher. If you have a good recipe for beef borst I'd like to have it. — Miami Beach

Dear Mi: I'm going to quit while I'm ahead. Read on.

Dear Ann: I never measure anything and I hate recipes. But I tried your meat loaf and it was wonderful. That lady in Detroit who said her dog wouldn't eat it made me mad. I gave your meat loaf to our dog and he cleaned the plate and cried for more. — Sioux Falls.

Dear Ann Landers: About your meat loaf. It is terrific. We don't have a dog but I gave some to our cat. She ate every bit of it.

Dear Ann: That meat loaf recipe must have made you rich. You mentioned three brand names. Now you can retire and it's about time. — I Spy

Dear Spy: Sorry to disappoint you but commercials are out of my line. And I have more bad news — I have no retirement plans.

Dear Ann: Your meat loaf recipe is good but it would be better if you used whipping cream instead of water. Also we don't like tomato sauce in our family so I used a can of mushroom soup instead. It was delicious. — Hartford

Dear Hart: We don't need the extra calories and we do like tomato sauce in our family, but thanks for the suggestions.

Dear Ann: I have improved on your recipe by adding four hard-boiled eggs. I just shoved them into the meat loaf — nicely spaced so everyone would get at least part of one. It looks beautiful when you cut it. — Saskatoon.

Dear Sas: Sounds great. I'll try it.

Dear Ann: Your stove needs to be regulated. One hour is not long enough. My meat loaf was too rare and I had to put it back for an extra 15 minutes. — Columbia, S.C.

Dear S.C.: I had my stove checked two weeks ago. Maybe YOUR stove needs regulating.

Dear Ann: I read your column in Hong Kong. My cook cannot read English. Can you have that meat loaf recipe translated into Chinese? I realize this would put you to a lot of trouble but I see that your name was mentioned on the list of the most admired women in the world and this means you go out of your way to be outstanding and do unusual things. Thank you in advance. — Former Buffalo Reader

Dear Buff: Sorry, but I'm not equipped to deal with Chinese translation. Try Madame Chiang Kai-shek. She was on the list, too.

Espionage Suspected Of Soviet

SEATTLE Wash. (AP) — A Soviet employee of the United Nations refuses to comment on charges of espionage against him. The State Department, the FBI in Washington and the Soviet mission to the United Nations also are keeping quiet on the case.

Aleksandr Vassilevich Tikhomirov, 37, remained in city jail on an FBI complaint which said he had conspired with Russian agents and "other persons unknown" since Jan. 4, 1969, to obtain information about U.S. defenses.

An unidentified official of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C., visited Tikhomirov in his cell for about 30 minutes Sunday, but made no attempt to post bail.

Bail of $100,000 was set Saturday by U.S. Commissioner Walter J. Reseburg Jr., who scheduled a hearing Wednesday.

As an employee of the U.N. Secretariat, Tikhomirov had unlimited freedom to travel in the United States.

An agreement between the United States and the United Nations gives Secretariat employees immunity from prosecution only for actions connected with U.N. duties.

The FBI said Tikhomirov was arrested Saturday on a downtown Seattle street about one hour after a scheduled meeting with an unidentified technical sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

The agency said the sergeant, who had clearance for access to secret material, met Tikhomirov Dec. 6 in Seattle and was asked to obtain secret information, particularly "concerning the national defense of the Northwest United States, such as anti-aircraft, missiles, etc."

New Radar-like Device May Catch Oil Culprits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A radar-like device which sees through darkness and fog has been developed to catch vessels which dump thousands of barrels of waste oil in American waters each year.

This illegal practice, usually carried out furtively by ships approaching port, is a major source of pollution of U.S. coastal waters.

U.S. Coast Guard planes spotted more than 800 such spills last year and other sources estimate the number of spills may run as high as 10,000 annually. At present the Coast Guard has to rely on visual sightings in daylight and it has been difficult to prove which of several ships sighted near a slick at dawn dumped oil during the night.

To meet a Coast Guard need to catch the culprits in the act, even at night or in bad weather, engineers at Aerojet-General's Space Division came up with a "camera" sensitive not to visible light but to microwave radiations—the basis of radar.

The device, called a microwave radiometer, is an adaptation of a sensor carried by surveillance aircraft to spot enemy vessels at night and in fog through detection of traces of oil in their wakes.

Weighing less than 100 pounds, it can be carried by the light planes the Coast Guard uses to patrol harbors and coastal waters.

What the camera sees is displayed on a screen in the plane's cabin. Since oil and water give off different microwave emissions, the appearance of an oil slick can be detected quickly even in darkness and the ship that dumped it identified before it can leave the scene.

Cmdr. William Lehr, chief of the Coast Guard's pollution control branch, said the need to dump oil at sea arises from the practice of taking on seawater as ballast to maintain stability.

At the start of a voyage, ballast tanks usually contain fuel oil, which is replaced by seawater as it is consumed. When the

Hippie Family Members Are Ordered to Testify

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At least eight members of a hippie-style "family," still loyal to their jailed leader Charles M. Manson, have been ordered to testify when he goes to trial on murder and conspiracy charges in the slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

The trial was set Monday for March 30, and five girls and three young men were subpoenaed when they showed up in court to watch the colorfully clad Manson act as his own attorney.

In gypsy-like tattered lace, satin and fringes, the group formed a ragged gallery in the front rows of the spectator section at his court appearance.

One girl, called Gypsy, cud-dled a 4-month-old baby she called Elf. A couple held hands and nuzzled.

When the prosecution subpoenaed the group, Manson objected, "They're my witnesses."

The trial may be delayed by the birth of a baby to one of the defendants.

Linda Kasabian, 20, who came to court in a white maternity smock, is expecting a child the first week in April, her attorney said. However, Superior Court Judge William B. Keene set the March 30 trial date for her, Manson and Leslie Van Housen, 19, saying he would consider Mrs. Kasabian's physical condition then.

Manson and four followers are accused in the slayings Aug. 9 of Miss Tate and four visitors to her home. Manson and five followers are charged with killing Mr. and Mrs. Leno LaBianca, wealthy store owners, the following night. The prosecutor wants a joint trial.

Manson, in gold velvet trousers and white Edwardian shirt, told the judge he wants a change of venue. The judge set next Monday for arguments on that and other motions. He denied another Manson motion to dismiss charges, but granted a motion for discovery of prosecution evidence—making it available for defense review.

After the hearing, the Manson clan members met with attorneys for various defendants, held a news conference and read parts of a letter Manson wrote to Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger. In it, Manson complained of poor legal facilities in the jail, said he was on a 25-day hunger strike to protest, and claimed his friends were being harassed.

The "family" still lives communally in the San Fernando Valley near Los Angeles. They are frequent visitors to the jail, running errands for Manson and raising funds for his defense.

Add New Luxury To River Running

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — A new luxury has been added to the normally rugged sport of river running.

River running, shooting down the rapids in a canoe or raft, usually means living under the most primitive conditions.

But runners on one remote section of the Salmon River now have the opportunity to bathe in a tub complete with hot running water.

The tub, dragged into the wilderness by an unknown benefactor, sits along the river's edge right below some rocks from which warm spring water drips into it.

"It has become a personal thing with the river runners who know about it," says one outdoorsman. "The people who know about that tub always make it a point to stop there, get out and soak in the hot water."

Sales Tax Vote

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Springfield residents will vote March 10 on a proposed one-cent city sales tax.

In proposing the tax, City Manager David Burkhalter told the city council Monday that the property tax be reduced if the sales tax is adopted.

Marriage May Perhaps Be Greatest Reformer

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Rare indeed is the fellow who marries a girl to reform her. But whether reform was his goal or not, many a husband finds out that nothing changes a girl like marriage.

At first she delighted in meeting him at the door with his slippers in her hand when he came home from work. Now if she can't find her own slippers, she slap-slaps around the house in his.

Before the wedding she ate so little he was afraid she'd starve to death, and he'd tell her solicitously, "You just can't live on love alone." Now she eats so much that the refrigerator wince every time she approaches it, and when he upbraids her for her appetite she reminds him, "You don't expect me to live on love alone, do you?"

Once he was proud of her because she was the snappiest dresser in the neighborhood. But now she comes to breakfast each morning looking so frowny he half expects her to fly into the room on a broomstick.

During their courtship days, he remembers, they loved to go on picnics and pick four-leaf clovers together. But lately, he reflects, all she seems interested in picking with him is arguments.

There was a time when she praised his short, crew-cut hair because she said it made him look so manly. Now that he's getting bald—and therefore looks even more manly—she wants him to buy a toupee that would make him look like an aging sheepdog.

She used to be interested even in his daydreams, and when he fell into a reverie, she'd say, "A penny for your thoughts, my darling." But today if he starts to tell her what's on his mind, she remarks cuttingly, "What have you got to shout about?"

Before he led her to the altar she assured him that there was nothing more she wanted from life than to live alone with him in an ivory tower of their own. But how many months passed before she started complaining about their little nest for two. "This isn't an apartment—it's a jail!" Not many.

Then she was passionately happy if he brought her nothing but a single red rose. Now she is likely to demand a written explanation if he fails to bring her his full paycheck in his mouth—uncashed.

In the old days, when she invited him to a home-cooked dinner in her apartment, she told him with pretended sternness,

"You go into the living room. You know very well no woman likes a man underfoot in her kitchen." But what happens today if he asks her for even a sandwich? Flopping down on the sofa, she replies, "Go out to the kitchen and fix it yourself, butterfingers. And while you're there, you might as well fix one for me, too."

Now and then he wonders wistfully whatever happened to the dreamboat maiden of his courtship days. Nothing really happened to her. She simply married him and turned out to be just what she had been all along—a girl just like the girl who married his dear old dad.

Octane Rating Difficult to Track Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—The machine-gun clattering and popping of an automobile engine during heavy acceleration is more than a nuisance. It's likely to be expensive.

The noises, called "knock" or "ping," mean the car is burning the wrong gasoline. The result can be a battered piston. Signs that a car owner has been using the wrong gasoline can void his warranty.

Even if the engine noises don't tip off a driver, he can still be using the wrong gasoline. There'll be no damage to the engine, but he'd be spending more money on gasoline than necessary.

The key to a happy marriage of engine and fuel is octane rating—the ability of a gasoline to resist knocking.

How easily a driver can find out the octane rating of a specific gasoline is a point of contention.

Oil companies say the information is furnished to all their dealers. The Federal Trade Commission has a bundle of complaints from drivers who say getting the information from a service station operator is next to impossible.

As a result the commission has proposed—in the face of industry opposition—that a gasoline's octane rating be clearly displayed on filling station pumps.

Concern for Polar Bears Expressed at Conference

MORGES, Switzerland (AP)—Changing ice-floe patterns are giving Russian polar bears a one-way ticket to the West—and sometimes a life of ease which is threatening their existence.

Concern over the animals' future led delegates from the five circumpolar nations—Canada, Denmark, Norway, the United States and the Soviet Union—to meet at the headquarters here of the International Union for Conservation of Nature.

A study group has reported that Ursus Maritimus, as the bear is biologically known, is threatened by excessive hunting and changes in habitat. The report called it an endangered species.

By estimate, 1,250 polar bears were killed last year by local populations who use them for food and clothing, and by hunters in planes. Soviet scientists estimate that there may be only 10,000 left.

The group reported that ice floes are drifting much farther west and south, bringing the animals closer to population centers.

"Around the Hudson Bay area we almost have too many polar bears," said Dr. John S. Tener, director of the Canadian Wildlife Service.

"They find they can get food by night from garbage cans and become fat and lazy."

"But in their more natural habitat farther north they are becoming scarce. The Soviet Union is particularly affected. Many of the bears coming south appear to come from Soviet territory."

Many of the Russian "emigre" bears originate at Wrangel Island in the Siberian Sea, a Soviet strategic center to which all access is barred. This is about 350 miles from Alaska.

The Soviet authorities have placed a complete ban on hunting. In the other countries it is

When a gasoline's octane is too low, the fuel in the combustion chamber explodes prematurely, catching the piston in mid-stroke and sending a severe jolt into the car's power system. When the octane is too high, there is no damage, but a driver can be wasting from $30 to $50 in a year of normal driving.

Gasolines bear a vast array of octane-related labels like "regular," "standard," "super," "premium," "hi-test" or simply brand names with no generic designation.

Besides being imprecise, says the FTC, the labels cause confusion for another reason. "In certain instances gasolines are being marketed by the descriptive grade name of 'regular' which are in fact of a lower octane rating than the average acceptable range of 'regular' brands normally marketed, with resulting damage to the engines," the commission says.

Car manufacturers consider octane rating important enough to specify in owners' manuals the octane to be used in the engine.

Generally, regular gasolines have an octane rating of 94 or 95. Premium gasolines, which cost about 5 cents more a gallon, are rated at 99. Laminated around the two major classifications are sub-regular gasolines with a 91 octane rating, middle-octane gasolines rate at 97 and super octanes rated at 100.

The oil industry has complained octane measurement is an inexact technique and drivers would only be confused by a posting of the ratings. Furthermore, the posting would be expensive to initiate and enforce, the industry has complained.

The proposal has the support of consumer groups. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.; Reps. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., and Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., and a major manufacturer of outboard motors.

Auto makers haven't taken a stand on the FTC proposal.

Commission staffers are drafting a recommendation for the full commission. A final ruling isn't expected before May.

National Milk Producers Seek Price Support Lift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Milk Producers Federation has asked the Agriculture Department to boost government price supports for manufacturing milk to 90 per cent of parity for the marketing year beginning April 1.

This would mean a floor price of $4.90 per hundredweight, compared with $4.28 in effect for the current year. Ninety per cent is the maximum allowed by federal law.

The dairy groups last year made a similar request of the Nixon administration, but Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin announced on April 1 that the support price would remain at $4.28, which was about 84 per cent of parity at that time.

Farm expenses have continued to soar during the year, however, and have caused the dairy—a fair price formula—level to shrink. Officials said the price support level most recently was 78.5 per cent of parity.

which currently is $5.45 per hundredweight of manufacturing grade milk.

Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the milk federation, asked in a letter to Hardin that the announcement of next year's price supports be made immediately. Department officials said they expect no announcement until around April 1, the beginning of the new marketing year.

"The increase in prices paid to dairy farmers is necessary if there is to be an adequate supply of milk and dairy products for the nation's consumers," Healy said.

Farmers have made major gains in increasing productivity, Healy said, but expenses have outstripped prices received. He noted that milk output in 1969 was the least in 17 years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Reserve Bank official from Kansas City has been named research director for the Farm Credit Administration, E.

A. Jaenke, FCA governor announced today.

Dr. Gene L. Swackhamer, research officer and economist for the Kansas City bank, will begin his new duties with FCA on March 2, Jaenke said.

The FCA is the supervisory agency for 37 banks and 1,100 credit associations which make up the cooperative Farm Credit System. Last year some $10.1 billion was loaned to farmers and their cooperatives by the system, Jaenke said.

Swackhamer will be responsible for developing a credit research program to aid in policy development, Jaenke said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin is scheduled to participate in the 32nd annual National Farm Institute in Des Moines, Iowa, on Feb. 12-13.

Hardin and other leading farm officials will discuss policy priorities and projections involving agriculture during the 1970s.

Social Security Payments Won't Provide Good Life

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In almost every medium- or large-size city in America it costs at least $500 a month for a retired couple to live moderately well. Top Social Security benefits, however, amount to only $285 a month.

Despite the 15 per cent boost in benefits this year, therefore, a couple who relied solely on Social Security would be in serious financial straits and very likely a candidate for welfare.

The situation is revealed clearly by scanning the Labor Department's moderate retirement budgets which show monthly living costs of $600 in Boston, $527 in Indianapolis, $496 in Dallas and $445 in San Francisco.

Since these budgets were published in 1967, living expenses have risen by 12 per cent, but Medicare has taken over much of the medical expenses of the elderly, so the two factors tend to offset each other.

The discrepancy between benefits and needs is not the result of oversight or error on the part of the federal government, of course. The simple explanation is that Social Security is a supplement rather than a complete pension.

Nevertheless, a good many people may be lulled into a false sense of security because they feel a government that estimates the needs of a retired couple at one figure wouldn't offer benefits one-half the size.

As one critic views the situation, "Social Security benefits flunk the government test of retirement living." That is the headline of a report being sent to insurance firms by the Institute for Business Planning.

The institute, a research and advisory service, is reminding insurance salesmen that profits await them in notifying middle-age couples of their retirement needs, helping them set financial goals, and then selling them cash value insurance or annuities to achieve these goals.

While asserting that the present Social Security benefits are a good base for retirement, IBP states that a lot of people have a mistaken notion about the real size of their benefits, a misunderstanding it blames on publicists.

Every time Social Security benefits are raised, it states, congressional and social security public relations specialists publish tables spotlighting the top benefit for someone with maximum coverage.

That top benefit for a retired worker, after the latest increase, was listed at $250.70 a month.

"But these publicists," it continues, "are not apt to tell the public that the top benefit is not for the here and now but may be attainable only by someone who is now about 30 or 35 years old."

It explains: Tables showing maximum benefits are based on an average monthly wage of $650 a month in the years before 1968.

"Therefore, no one who retires at age 65 during the next 30 years or so will have an average monthly covered wage of $650 (unless Congress increases the wage basis in the future...)"

In any event, it continues, "a person retiring at age 65 in 1970 will probably have an average monthly wage of $450 or less and will probably receive a retirement benefit of $190 or less for himself and $95 or less for his wife."

Even if Social Security is supplemented by proceeds from a company pension plan, the net income still might be considerably short of a comfortable living standard, IBP reminds insurers. And therein lies the opening for insurance salesmen.

Santa Fe Railroad Tells ICC of Loss

CHICAGO (AP)—Four Santa Fe Railway trains between Chicago and the Pacific Coast are losing more than $7 million annually, the Interstate Commerce Commission was told Monday.

The estimate was made at a hearing on the railway's application to discontinue two of the trains, Nos. 23 and 24 between Chicago and Los Angeles, and reroute Nos. 1 and 2 to operate out of Los Angeles rather than San Francisco.

Such an arrangement, the company estimated, would result in a saving of about $5 million. It would also enable the company to concentrate its passenger service in Southern California.

The Chicago ICC hearing was the first of a series that will go on for about 28 days in cities served by the train including Kansas City, Topeka, Hutchinson and Dodge City, Kan.

Student Riots Curtail Rogers' Trip Activities

TUNIS (AP) — American officials canceled a visit by Secretary of State William P. Rogers to Tunis University today following an anti-American student demonstration.

Rogers arrived in the Tunisian capital Monday night for the second stop of his 10-nation African tour. Foreign Minister Habib Bourguiba Jr. welcomed him warmly as police in a downtown area three miles away penned in hundreds of students chanting anti-American slogans.

Only authorized persons were allowed near the airport, and Rogers saw nothing of the demonstration while being driven to suburban Carthage, where he and his wife are staying. The crowd dispersed without violence after distributing pamphlets accusing the United States of encouraging Israeli aggression.

But the ugly mood of many of the students gave American officials second thoughts about a discussion session and tea party which had been planned for the visitor at the American-built campus. A student spokesman said the cancellation was a "positive achievement" of the demonstration.

Tunisia has received more than $600 million in U.S. aid in the 15 years of its independence from French rule, and its government consistently has taken a pro-American position on most international issues including Vietnam.

But public sympathy for the Arab cause against Israel is running at fever pitch, as it is almost everywhere in the Arab world, and the government has been increasingly forced to bow to this pressure.

Rogers was meeting today with Premier Bahi Ladgham who expressed the new Tunisian mood in unmistakable terms in a speech Sunday.

He said Tunisia retains its full independence and freedom to express its own views despite acceptance of massive economic aid from "some big powers"—meaning the United States.

"Tunisia is not aligned with anyone," declared, "Tunisia is convinced that aid given to Israel conflicts not only with the feelings of all those who are fighting for their freedom (in Palestine) but also of all those who are working for peace, justice and the dignity of man."

Ladgham's statement on the eve of Rogers' two-day visit was a clear warning to the secretary of state not to expect too much from his visit as far as the Middle East was concerned.

As a special gesture of friendship, Rogers brought a piece of moon rock and the Tunisian flag carried to the moon by Apollo 12. They are being presented to the premier since ailing President Bourguiba, the foreign minister's father, is under medical treatment in Paris.

The secretary of state goes Wednesday to Addis Ababa. There a meeting is scheduled with President Tito of Yugoslavia, who also is touring Africa. They will discuss the Middle East situation, and their talk will be particularly significant because Tito goes next to the Sudan, Egypt and Libya, three of the more uncompromising Arab states.

Rogers' flight from Tunis to Addis Ababa will take him across the Sudan, which has no relations with the United States but gave special clearance for his plane.

Four Suspects Being Held In St. Louis Theft

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Four persons, one a juvenile, were being held by St. Louis police today in connection with the robbery-slaying of a young nurse, Mrs. Lynda Schepers Walker.

Warrants were issued Monday charging Ronald Gunn, 17, with first-degree murder and armed robbery and Melvin Lee Vinson, 17, with armed robbery.

Jerome Joe Pruitt, 22, was charged in warrants issued Sunday with first-degree murder and armed robbery. Police said Pruitt claimed in a statement that Mrs. Walker, 26, was shot by a 16-year-old juvenile in custody.

Mrs. Walker was shot in the back of the head about 4 p.m. Friday, shortly after leaving her job at Firmin Desloge Hospital.

Lt. Norman Jacobsmeier said Pruitt told officers he and the juvenile were driven to the area by Vinson and Gunn. Pruitt said they saw Mrs. Walker getting into her car and he and the juvenile forced their way in after her.

Jacobsmeier said Pruitt told police he took the wheel and when the woman tried to escape, his companion shot her. He said her body fell out of the car as he drove away.

People In The News

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay says he has never asked his three teen-aged daughters whether they have experimented with marijuana but "I shouldn't be the least surprised if they had."

The question arose after a talk on the narcotics problem Monday between the mayor and industrialist Howard J. Samuels, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. Samuels' son Howard Jr., 17, faces a charge of possessing a hashish pipe and pep pills. He was arrested Nov. 2.

Lindsay said he had discussed the question of drugs with his daughters and small son only in general terms. The children are Katharine, 19, Margaret, 16, Anne, 14, and John Jr., 9. "I think every parent is concerned," Lindsay remarked. "I'm concerned."

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Noel Coward attended the Broadway revival of "Private Lives" Monday night. Coward wrote and starred in the play 40 years ago. "It is a funny play, isn't it?" Coward said with a sigh as the curtain dropped.

The audience in the Billy Rose Theater gave Sir Noel a standing ovation when he arrived and again at the end of the play. Later, in Tammy Grimes' dressing room, Sir Noel alternately praised and teased Miss Grimes and Brian Bedford, the present stars.

Agnew who took part in the classic as a member of a pro-amateur team, said Monday newsmen who described the shot as a slice were mistaken. "That wasn't a slice. That was just an ordinary miss," said the vice president, here for a Republican fund-raising dinner.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Wayne Cochran, now finishing a four-week stint at the Las Vegas Strip hotel, was sued for divorce Monday by his wife of 10 months.

Linda Diana Cochran listed incompatibility as the grounds for the action which will be heard in District Court Tuesday. They were married in April in Atlanta, Ga.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Marty Robbins, country music singer and a star of the Grand Ole Opry, has left a hospital where three of his leg veins were used to bypass clogged arteries near his heart in an operation Jan. 27.

Surgery was decided on after Robbins suffered a heart attack while on tour. He was discharged from the hospital Monday.

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Sen. Hiram L. Fong's daughter Merie Ellyn, 21, has been chosen as Queen Shenandoah of the annual Apple Blossom Festival April 30 to May 2.

Selection of Miss Fong, whose father is a Hawaii Republican, was announced by festival officials Monday.

Kansas City Robbery Nets Thieves $21,000

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Four men robbed the Suburban Bank of Kansas City of $21,000 Monday and fled as a bank customer fired four shots into the air, thinking it might be a staged holdup.

Movie cameras filmed the scene in the bank as three masked Negroes unhesitatingly cleaned out the cash drawers and stuffed the money into a white cloth sack. The fourth man, apparently the driver, stayed out in the foyer and was not masked.

The shots were fired by Howard Phillips, who carries a gun when he deposits money from his drive-in restaurant.

"I thought that if I shot these guys and they were actually policemen staging a holdup for practice, then I'd really be in trouble," Phillips said. "I kept thinking about the lawsuit filed down there in South Carolina where somebody was shot last week during a staged holdup."

The bandits paid no attention to Phillips gunfire and fled in a car that was found just 14 minutes later three blocks from the bank.

Witnesses said the men switched to a late model Cadillac.

James Jones, a senior vice president of the bank, placed the loss at $21,000.

Where It All Begins

Almost coincidental with the observance of Boy Scout Week, February 8-14 are dates for national attention directed at Crime Prevention. The purpose is to emphasize the growing menace and cost of crime. Certainly this is getting daily attention by the news media reporting the unabated criminal activities in Missouri's major cities and to a lesser degree where they occur in the boondocks of Central Missouri.

Crime prevention is a national problem stirring public interest as never before. However, interest must be translated into action if it is to mean anything.

Crime prevention rests in a deep-seated respect for persons and property, something every Boy Scout is taught to acquire if he hasn't already learned it at home where he should become acquainted with it. Crime prevention and law-abiding society should begin at home where discipline is the first requisite of an orderly civilization.

—O—

An extension of remarks concerning Boy Scouts is apropos this week, with the suggestion that we can't expect the youngsters to assume all the responsibility of maintaining law and order, or expecting miracles from the government.

A contemporary encourages adults to take a close look at their own behavior and attitude toward character building organizations. Recently a Portland, Oregon newspaper reported on the declining membership of the local Boy Scout Council. Scout leaders summarized reasons to account for it. Many of the reasons can be laid squarely at the door of adult citizens. As one official commented: "More parents are inclined to give their kids a few bucks so they can go do something on their own rather than participating in something with them."

Another opinion indicated that the relative lack of discipline in today's society is a problem to scout growth. "Too often," they said, "if a Scout master exercises a little discipline to maintain order, new, young scouts go home and complain to their parents. And too often the parents agree that 'you don't have to take that—don't go back'."

Then another angle: "Sometimes when a kid gets rained on or dirty during a campout, neither the scout nor his parents like it—and they quit. More parents must realize their obligations to their communities. And if scouting is to continue to progress, they must remind themselves of the meaning of the scout symbol, 'duty to God and country, to others, and to self.'"

The Boy Scouts stand for the highest principles of law, order and citizenship. Unless these principles are supported, talk of preserving law and order is just so much hot air.

Sewage Into Ocean Kills Sea Life

WASHINGTON — For 40 years, sludge from sewage plants in the New York area has been hauled by barge outside New York harbor and dumped unceremoniously into the ocean.

Jack Anderson

Now an alarming new report has shown that the practice — which is widespread along America's coastal areas — has destroyed all sea life for miles around the dumping point.

The study lends credence to the warnings of ecologists that the increasing use of the ocean as a national waste dump could eradicate all life in the country's coastal waters within a half-century.

The report was commissioned by the Army Engineers to determine whether licenses should continue to be granted for offshore dumping around New York and other coastal cities.

The study also found that the offshore dumping of muck, dredged from harbor channels and river bottoms in the New York area, has an equally devastating effect on marine life.

The sewage sludge is solid residue from 19 metropolitan New York waste-treatment plants. More than four million tons of it are emptied into the Atlantic every year at a point about seven miles from both the New Jersey and Long Island shores.

Ordinarily, these waters would be teeming with shellfish and other sea life. But the researchers found that in a 14-square-mile area around the dumping point, most marine life has vanished.

In one five-square-mile area, there was no sign of life whatsoever. Even durable varieties of sea worms, which normally survive in polluted water, had been killed off.

The report found further that marine life had been virtually wiped out in still another five-square-mile area where muck dredged from nearby harbor and river bottoms had been deposited.

This information comes at a time when both industries and municipalities are looking increasingly toward the oceans as a possible cheap solution to the pollution problems that have turned the nation's inland waters into open sewers.

If the damage to sea life from sludge, which is at least partially treated, can be so severe, then raw sewage from industrial plants and city sewers poses an even greater threat.

—Tobacco Windfall—

Producers of vegetables and fruits pay the Agriculture Department $10.8 million a year from their own pockets to make sure their products are accurately graded. But the lords of the tobacco industry get a free inspection job from Agriculture.

As a result, the taxpayer paid $2.9 million in 1969 so that the Agriculture Department could inspect tobacco for quality, leaf location and color of leaf — everything but how many puffs it takes for a full-fledged case of lung cancer or emphysema.

The tobacco program has been quietly sending up tax dollars in smoke in this manner since 1935. Only cotton gets the same sort of free inspection service.

The Nixon administration has asked that the tobacco industry fund its own way. But the tobacco interests have hidden power on Capitol Hill.

—Thompson's Tale—

Rep. Fletcher Thompson has ventured to the mouth of his cave to attack this column harshly for reporting how poorly he serves the small investor.

The Georgia Republican protested in a widely distributed press handout that he is not working with mutual fund lobbyists to fleece the family-size investor.

Apparently, he didn't expect reporters to look beyond his press release. Some took the trouble, however, to check the 952-page hearing record of the House Commerce and Finance Subcommittee on which Fletcher serves.

It was before this subcommittee that the mutual fund lobby made a last stand for self-regulation in face of the Securities and Exchange Commission's efforts to bring some small reform to the industry. No one fought more doggedly to kill the SEC bill than Thompson.

Actually, he swung his club more heavily than did the lobbyists, themselves.

"I happen to be a person, unless I see a need for legislation I don't want legislation," he said after hearing detailed evidence of the need for legislation, indeed, even after some of the lobbyists had agreed to go along with the bill.

"There has been a lack of any showing of a necessity for any legislation of this sort," he remarked smack in the face of SEC testimony on the misleading, confusing and fleecing of unsuspecting investors.

"I want to see a showing where someone has been abused," he complained after the SEC had told of how some funds siphoned off 50 per cent of the investor's first year's payments as "sales commissions."

Fletcher Thompson's small-investor constituents may want to read for themselves these and many more of his statements in the 972-page record — instead of his public relations bombast about what he does for fund buyers.

THE LONDON SPECTATOR: Losing Status. — What was once the virtue of virtues is now losing status so fast that it is in danger of becoming an object of derision. Recipients of what was once called national assistance and is now called supplementary benefit are urged, officially, to recognize that what they are receiving is not charity, but something that is theirs, as of right.

Once the charitable act is, in effect, nationalized, it is emptied of its moral worth; it ceases, in other words, to be charity. ... In the first place, it impoverishes the receiver. For, whatever the financial resources of the state, nothing can possibly replace the love, the care, the compassion, the personal relationship that are all involved in the true meaning of charity.

In the second place, it undermines the moral basis of society. We begin thinking that we can shuffle off all our own responsibilities for caring for the old or the sick or the inadequate and leave it to the welfare state. It is a small step from that to accepting the nationalization of all forms of charity. It is not so much greater a step to accepting the nationalization of morality altogether. It is no coincidence that the same section of the younger generation who are most impatient with all standards of personal morality are most censorious of governmental behavior.

The Utterly Odious Among Students

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

In a midwestern city, a high school teen-ager was hospitalized to be treated for an addictive drug (not heroin). Evidently cured, back in school, he was given a sports new car for his birthday by his happy parents.

Not too long afterward, school officials called the boy's mother to ask why he had not been to school for several days. The mother, no harsh disciplinarian but a quiet-spoken, gentle-spirited woman, went in search of her son. She found him in the school area, back on drugs, driving idly around.

When she remonstrated with him and threatened to take away his car, the boy knocked his mother down in the street and drove off, leaving her there. She had to be hospitalized briefly.

Today the boy is out of school, minus car, living away from home. He needs psychiatric care, but doctors tell his mother the city's psychiatric wards are so filled that the corridors are being used for bed space. His case is not considered serious enough to compel admittance.

Let's go now to a city farther west. An admirable young boy, a high achiever in many fields, well-adjusted and good-humored, recently was arguing with his mother over the gradual lengthening of his hair.

"You just don't understand," he said as she fled the room.

To another listener, he explained what his mother did not get.

"Everybody at school (a private academy) wears his hair this way, so I do, too. I feel I have to, because I don't do any of the other things most of the rest of them do."

Does that include using drugs?

The boy's answer was "yes." He said he had been approached several times, had always rebuffed the youthful pushers, and was now left alone.

In a large eastern city high school, a teen-age student twice in recent weeks has been a witness to little enactments on the "drug scene," incontrovertible evidence that drugs (possibly heroin in one instance) were being used.

Before deciding whether or not to report these incidents, the student had to weigh the question of possible bodily harm if vengeful drug users discovered who reported them. Nice age, isn't it?

Back to the Midwest, to a fair-sized university. A lovely young girl, not a top-rank student but plainly capable of being captivated by imaginative teaching, tossed in the towel early in her second year. She eloped with an earnest young man in a modest-sized town who had to skip college because he is his mother's sole support.

Did the college's "brutal impersonality" turn this young girl off? Not at all. What turned her off, and her whole life had been proof of a deep liking for people, was the crude behavior of her male and female college associates.

Her experience, as told to me, was that a disconcertingly large proportion of her female college mates were, at worst, petty thieves—and at best grossly and continuously inconsiderate in their day-to-day personal dealing with her and others.

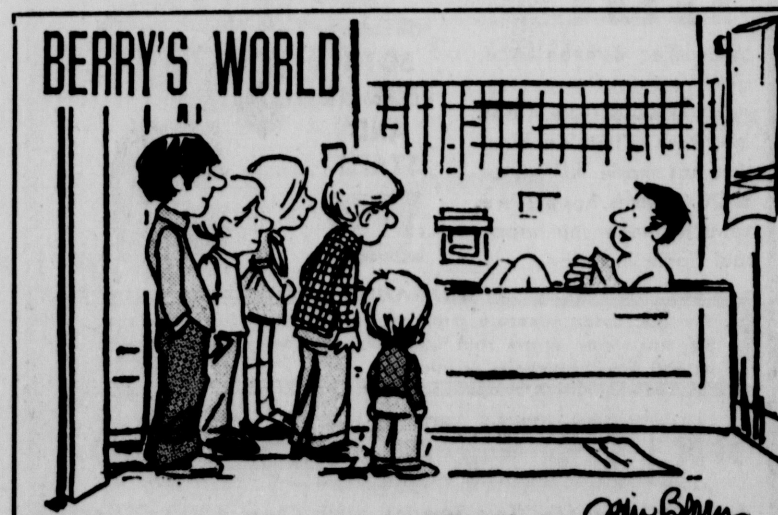

Hardly a week passed when she did not lose some article of clothing or other personal possession to the girl thieves in her dormitory. Many times she found the incontestable proof later in other girls' rooms.

As for the male students, this attractive, sensitive young girl summed them up as being, almost without exception, arrogant young sexual vultures to whom the girls were simply targets without feelings.

I have just heard comparable testimony from another young girl who attended a larger midwestern university. Thievery was common.

Now I have no way of knowing how general such conduct is in the high schools and colleges of this country, since statistical measurements are inadequate. Girls who steal other girls' blouses in dormitories seldom make the police blotter.

Anyone who has some notion that this kind of conduct is not widely prevalent in this country is not in touch with the real world of today. Drugs and thievery are easy to deplore. The flood of human inconsiderateness is the more puzzling thing to face.

A letter from California reads in part, "No one in our duplicate game landed a three no-trump where there are nine tricks for the taking. Those who opened with one spade were raised in spades. I opened with one no-trump and bid two spades after my partner bid a Stayman two clubs. Maybe he should just have raised me to three no-trump. What do you think?"

There are some North players who wouldn't bother with Stayman and would simply take their partner right to the no-trump game, but we aren't among that group. It just happened this time that North's doubleton heart turned out to be of no value at the spade contract. At least, it must have been of no value when this hand was played in California, since we assume from the plaintive tone of our correspondent's letter that he didn't bring four spades home as he should have.

Here is the winning play at four spades: Take the first trick with dummy's queen of hearts. Draw trumps with two leads and take a third trump if you feel like it. Then cash the ace and king of hearts in order to discard the six of diamonds from dummy.

Then, if you like to finesse, you can take the diamond finesse. You will lose that finesse and your contract, since East will win and return a diamond to force you to attack the clubs. If you want to make the contract, just go right up with the ace of diamonds and lead back the queen. It won't matter who wins the trick. Neither East nor West can lead a club without giving you a sure club trick, and a lead of a red card will allow you to ruff in dummy and discard a club from your own hand.

Malayan Village Massacre

Former British Soldiers Confess

By EDWIN ROTH
Foreign Correspondent

LONDON — Because of the Pinkville massacre, four former British soldiers in the famous Scots Guards regiment have now publicly confessed on oath that on December 12, 1948, in a small nameless Malayan village, 25 Chinese men aged between 16 and 80 years were cold-bloodedly killed because they were suspected of being Communist guerrillas. At least one of these soldiers has on oath accused the present Scots Guards Regimental Sergeant-Major Charles Douglas of ordering and leading this massacre.

The four former soldiers have also stated on oath that at the official inquiry about the killing of these 25 Chinese they and others deliberately lied that the victims had been shot while trying to escape — because the soldiers were threatened: "Unless we all tell exactly the same story about an escape attempt, we can get 15 years' jail."

But the truth now appears to be that the 25 Chinese were shot in cold blood without justification, while the women and children of the small village were held prisoners in a truck outside the village. Then the village was burned down by the British soldiers.

In 1948 Britain still had compulsory draft for military service. The four soldiers were draftees.

The whole story came out now because of the famous radio interview by former Labor foreign secretary George Brown immediately after the Pinkville massacre became known, in which Brown told the Americans to stop weeping and carry on with the war, suggesting Britain's own cupboards were not clean.

This gave a great idea for a scoop to the editor of "The People," a sensational Sunday newspaper, who challenged Brown either to produce the evidence, or to withdraw his slur, because "The People" does not believe that in either of the two world wars or since any such crime as Pinkville has been committed by British soldiers."

Two days later, "The People" was telephoned by 40-year-old William Cootes, a former Scots Guards soldier, who told "The People" in a sworn formal statement that on December 12, 1948, the 25 Chinese whose death had caused considerable publicity at the time were not killed while trying to escape, but were murdered in cold blood after for one night they had been the prisoners of a Scots Guards patrol. Cootes also stated on oath that the soldiers were ordered to kill the 25 prisoners, and that he himself took part in the shooting.

This is a sworn confession of mass murder. It is also an accusation of mass murder against the Scots Guards Regimental Sergeant-Major Charles Douglas.

Together with two "People" reporters, Cootes then went to the home of the 40-year-old former Scots Guards soldier Alan Tuppen in the small English town Portlady. According to the reporters, Cootes began his conversation with his former comrade: "Do you remember the day we killed the villagers?" Tuppen replied instantly: "Killed them? It was murder! It was a day I have never forgotten." Tuppen also made a sworn statement completely confirming the statement of Cootes.

A 40-year-old Liverpool cab driver, Victor Remedios, father of five daughters, burst into tears when the two reporters visited him, and cried: "It's been a nightmare all these years. Get out of my house — I don't want to talk about it!" His wife also wept and said: "It's been on my mind all these years. It upsets him whenever he thinks about it."

A fourth former Scots Guards soldier, Robert Brownrigg, also confirmed on oath the details told by Cootes, Tuppen, and Remedios.

In 1948, Britain had a Labor government under Prime Minister Clement Attlee. Its war minister from 1947 to 1950 was Emanuel Shinwell, who is now an 85-year-old but still immensely vigorous Labor parliamentarian. Immediately after "The People" had published its sensational story, Shinwell said: "I am not only horrified, but amazed — because I have never before heard anything about this."

But the small British Communist daily "Morning Star", which in 1949 was still called "Daily Worker", reproduced next day the "Daily Worker's" front page of January 4, 1949 — with the headlines: "Storm sweep Malaya at Mass Murders — I saw unarmed workers shot down in cold blood."

The "Morning Star" also suggested ironically that Shinwell should have looked up the index of the official parliamentary record, because on January 26, 1949, the Communist parliamentarian Philip Piratin asked Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones on what charges the 25 killed Chinese had been detained. Creech Jones replied that they had been detained for questioning under emergency powers, and had been shot while trying to escape.

Arthur Creech Jones is dead. Shinwell repeated he knew nothing about the whole affair because Piratin had questioned not him but Creech Jones.

"I am highly amused about the Communist newspaper getting so hot and bothered," said Shinwell. "When I think what the Kremlin did to Czechoslovakia, and all the blood paths and purges of high-ranking Bolsheviks they indulged in — Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

The British Labor government is tremendously embarrassed by the question what it should do now. Many parliamentarians demand that something should be done. Defense secretary Denis Healey has ordered a new investigation.

Under British law, soldiers who committed murder 21 years ago could be hauled back into the army even now, and tried by a military court. This whole case is of immense interest in Germany, which has had much controversy about war crimes, and about a time limit for trying war crimes.

Block of Camphor Gum Will Remove Nasty Odors

DEAR POLLY—I want to lend a helping hand to Anna, who has some musty-smelling old books. Camphor gum, obtained at a drug-store, will work wonders for this. Unwrap the gum and place it with the books in a tightly enclosed space, such as a closed bookcase or closet. If the enclosure is not too large, one block should be sufficient. I find this a very inexpensive and effective deodorizer for this.—MRS. E. M. B.

DEAR GIRLS—Musty odors are usually a warning of mold growth, so they should be eliminated promptly. Often these odors will disappear if the area is well-ventilated and dry. If the odor persists, more drastic remedies must be employed. Keep a close watch. Just hiding the odor may not retard any possible mold growth.—POLLY

Roadrunner Defense Stops Metro, 75-54

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

"It was the sweetest victory for us to date," commented State Fair Community College Roadrunners Head Coach Fred Wehking after his squad had posted a 75-54 decision over the high scoring Unicorns of Kansas City Metropolitan Junior College Monday night on the home floor.

The SFCC mentor continued, "I think it is a more significant win than when we beat the Southwest Missouri State Bears junior varsity in early January in Springfield."

The Roadrunners combined one of their best defensive efforts to date with poor shooting from the field by the visitors for the victory.

From the outset of the contest, State Fair took command and were never headed; by the end of the first three minutes of play, Wehking's cagers had mounted a 10-1 lead.

Although SFCC never relinquished the lead, there were many shaky moments, especially in the first half.

Midway through the first half, Metropolitan had surged back to within two points, 19-17, on determined play and a rash of State Fair turnovers.

But, the Roadrunners regrouped after a time out and with less than 3:30 left in the initial half, pushed their lead to 28-20.

The Unicorns would not be denied in the late moments of the first period, as they were able to pull to within three, 31-28, by the half time buzzer.

For the most part, the second half belonged to the Roadrunners.

The locals took the opening tipoff and seconds later had cashed in on a three-point play by Darrell Gordon and added to that lead with 18:10 remaining in the game to 38-28.

If a turning point could be distinguished in the contest, it would have to be at the 13:18 point of the second half, when 6'7" Kevin Gerscheke picked up his fifth foul of the night for the visitors.

At that point, State Fair had an edge of 48-32.

Foul trouble plagued both teams throughout the game, but hardest hit was Metro.

The Unicorns had to play most of the second period without the services of Philip Whitley and Zachary Townsend, two players that had made life miserable for the Roadrunners in the two previous meetings of these clubs this season.

Neither Townsend or Whitley hurt SFCC in the scoring column; Whitley could only muster eight points for the night, while his teammate was held to five.

Few Roadrunners saw action, but five of the seven scorers netted in double figures.

For one of the few times this season, sophomore David Bratcher worked back into the State Fair starting lineup. This was mainly due to the fact that freshman front line star Gene Wimsatt was still nervously feeling the effects of his wife's birth to a son at Bothwell Hospital, only minutes before the opening tipoff.

Gayland Lightfoot was the game's leading scorer with 21 points and in netting the night's top total he set a SFCC free throw record by connecting on 11 of 11 attempts.

The other four State Fair cagers in double figures included John Nelson with 13, David Bratcher and Jerry Wright with 12 each and Darrell Gordon with 11.

Dan Richison, Bob Jones and Bruce Bender all hit in double figure ranks.

State Fair returns to action Thursday night with a home date with the Central Methodist junior varsity at 7:30 p.m.

The win for the Roadrunners pushed their mark for the year to 13-6, while Metropolitan fell for only the sixth time in 24 outings.

Southeast, Northwest Gain Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Northwest Missouri and Southeast Missouri won MIAA basketball games Monday night but there was no real change in the standings.

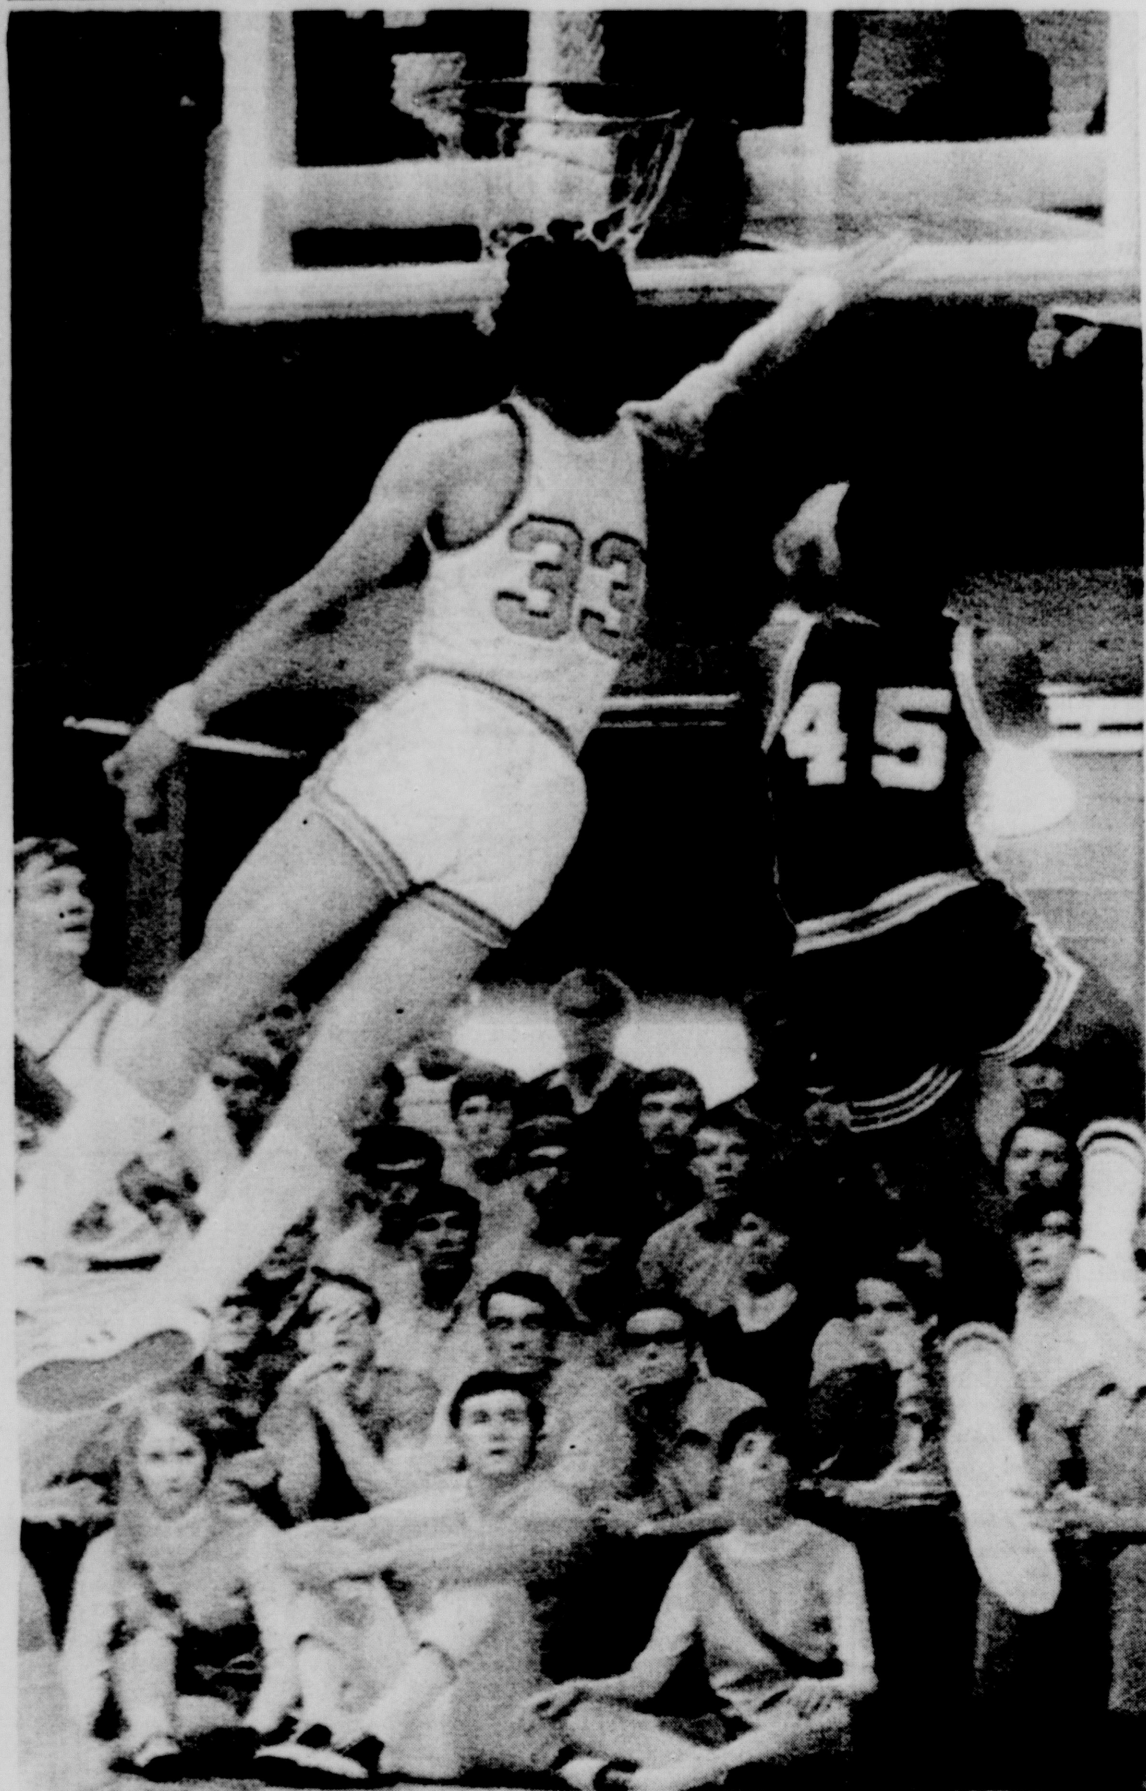

Northwest beat Rolla 69-58 at Maryville and Southeast defeated Northeast 84-75 at Kirksville. That left Northwest in third place with a 3-3 league mark, followed by Southeast at 3-4, Northeast 1-5 and Rolla 1-6.

Southwest and Central lead the MIAA in a 6-1 deadlock. Missouri Southern fattened its record to 19-5 by beating Culver-Stockton 68-56 at Joplin. Culver stands 13-6.

Southwest Baptist broke a half-time tie with six straight points then played Missouri-Kansas City even-up the rest of the way to beat the Kangaroos 80-73 at Kansas City.

Kentucky State defeated the visiting Lincoln Tigers 111-94. Southwest Baptist has a 12-5 record, Kansas City 8-12, and Lincoln 4-15.

Hottest scorer of the night was Southeast's Fred Anderson who poured in 37 points, most of them on corner jump shots against Northeast.

Iowa State stifled the Wildcats, 80-64, Monday night at Ames, Iowa, and opened the door for a donnybrook the rest of the way.

That was the second loss pinned on the Wildcats in three days and kept five other teams in contention—including defending champion Colorado who just last week looked as dead as a dodo.

Kansas State now stands 6-2, with Missouri 5-3, Kansas 4-3, Iowa State 5-4, Nebraska 3-3 and Colorado 3-4. Only Oklahoma, 2-5, and Oklahoma State, 2-6, are counted out.

Missouri whipped Oklahoma,

55-47, and Kansas whisked past Oklahoma State, 69-58, Monday night to close in on Kansas State.

Nebraska plays at Colorado tonight. If the Cornhuskers win, Colorado is just about finished. If the Buffaloes win, both of those teams are still in the running.

Kansas State, Missouri and Colorado all have three road games remaining and Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa State four.

The visitors have won only six of 30 Big Eight games so far, and the home teams now have won 12 straight.

Iowa State led 39-31 at the half and the Cyclones turned it on to forge a 57-36 bulge midway through the second half.

WSU Almost Gets Bruins

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
"You don't get a chance to knock off No. 1 very often."

That was the way Marv Harshman put it Monday night after his battling Washington State team wasted a golden opportunity and became mighty UCLA's 18th victim of the season 72-70.

But the Cougars, who blew a 13-point first-half lead before succumbing to the top-ranked Bruins in the closing minutes get another chance Friday night. The only difference is that the rematch is in Los Angeles, not Washington State's friendly Bohler Gym, scene of Monday night's squeaker.

Five other members of The Associated Press' Top Ten were in action. Second-ranked South Carolina crushed Wake Forest 81-54. No. 3 Kentucky walloped Mississippi State 86-57, 10th-rated North Carolina came from far behind to pull out an 88-86 triumph over fifth-ranked North Carolina State and New Mexico State, No. 6, trounced Montana State 92-73.

Unbeaten UCLA, which closed a 19-6 deficit to 36-30 at the half, didn't catch the fired-up Cougars until the final three minutes and went ahead to stay at 69-68 on Steve Patterson's rebound with 44 seconds left.

The key play came 12 seconds later. State's Dennis Hogg outleaped UCLA's Henry Bibby on a jump ball but the Bruins' long-armed Sidney Wicks picked it off. With 25 seconds remaining Curtis Rowe sank a free throw and Bibby wrapped it up by canning two free throws with 10 seconds to play.

Bibby paced the winners with 22 points, John Valley had 14 and Patterson 12. Rick Erickson was high for the Cougars with 28 and Gary Elliott had 21.

"They just weren't ready to play this team in the first half," said UCLA's John Wooden. "Maybe they had to see what it's like to play here (Pullman, Wash.) and I'm sure they found out. I was very, very aggravated at them."

Harshman felt differently. "I told my kids I'm surprised they didn't win," he said, "but you've got to hand it to those Bruins. When you're No. 1 you win those kind of games."

"It's hard to compare this UCLA team with last year's. It doesn't have Lew Alcindor, but it may be a better over-all team. They blend their talent well and they're very unselfish and well-disciplined."

Although UCLA ranks among the nation's leaders in average margin of victory, it was the fourth close call. The Bruins previously won by a point over Minnesota, Princeton and Oregon State.

South Carolina took a 28-15 halftime lead despite Wake Forest's slowdown tactics and ran away from the Deacons in the second half. John Roche and Tom Owens scored 24 points apiece and Owens also pulled down 18 rebounds. The Gamecocks have won 17 straight.

Kentucky's high-scoring Dan Issel managed only 17 points against Mississippi State but Mike Pratt took up the slack with 26 as the Wildcats ran their record to 18-1, the same as South Carolina's.

North Carolina trailed arch-rival N.C. State by 12 points in the second half before Charlie Scott, who finished with 33, paced the Tar Heels' comeback.

A run of 10 straight points put them in front with eight minutes left but they needed a three-point play by Scott and two free throws by Dennis Wuychik with four seconds left to wrap it up.

Jimmy Collins poured in 31 points and Sam Lacey contributed 20 in New Mexico State's rout of Montana State.

Among the Second Ten, 12th-ranked Marquette rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit behind Jeff Sewell and Dean Meringer and edged the Air Force 79-74. No. 17 Western Kentucky continued unbeaten in the Ohio Valley Conference with an 88-77 victory over Eastern Kentucky. 18th-ranked Southern California dropped a 77-72 double overtime thriller to Washington and Jimmy Hollon's 34 points led Alabama over No. 20 Georgia 94-86.

That dropped the Bulldogs out of a tie with Kentucky for the Southeastern Conference lead.

Kansas State's Big Eight lead was chopped to one game when Iowa State beat the Wildcats 80-64 while runner-up Missouri downed Oklahoma 55-47. And Pete Maravich scored 49 more points in Louisiana State's wild 127-114 defeat of Tulane.

Warbritton Drops First Hole-in-One

The first hole in one was made Saturday at Elm Hills public golf course south of Sedalia by Ray Warbritton on the seventh hole.

Warbritton used a five iron and was using an Acushnet ball at the time.

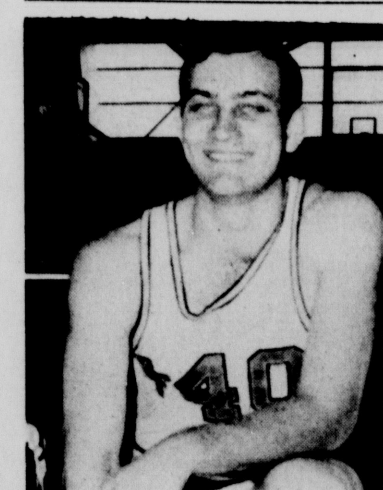

For his effort, Acushnet Company will award him with one dozen PGA balls, which will be presented by Russ Ream, operator of the Elms Hills facility.

The company will also mount his ball on a trophy.

The same day, Norman Scotten, the Elm Hills pro, defeated Sonny Palmer, former professional at the Whiteman Air Force Base. Scotten carded a nine under par 63, while Palmer shot a 66.

Task to Confront Big Oklahoman

Ronnie Etchison

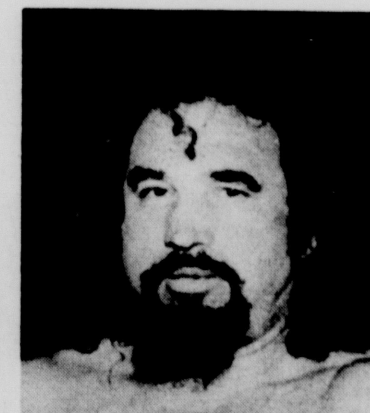

Danny Little Bear will have a two-fold task when he steps through the ropes at Convention Hall for tonight's professional wrestling program.

Besides defending his Central States championship against Nautrebo Kirby, he'll be trying to check Kirby's drive towards a possible world title shot against Dory Funk, Jr.

Believing himself a more worthy world contender than Kirby, the Oklahoma Indian is expected to put on a solid display of his wrestling skills and speed. He is predicting a clear-cut decision over Kirby, who last week became the first area heavyweight to defeat Tommy Martin here.

The title clash will headline a four-match, all-heavyweight program. Starting time is 8:15.

Ready to batter each other in the semifinal are two of the Midlands roughest ring workmen—Killer Cox and the Stomper.

For their pairing, the usual provisions have been waived and closed-fist slugging will be allowed. With this the case, it's expected the event will turn into something resembling a no-rules boxing match.

Rick Renaldo, the Pacific Coast import who has made an impression in his first few area starts, will be on hand for the special event. He's pitted against Martin, now on the rebound after last week's setback.

Scheduled in the opening match are rugged Baron Turco and veteran Ronnie Etchison.

Turf Specialists Meet to Get New Beauty Standards

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Some 4,000 golf course superintendents have gathered in Houston for the 41st International Turfgrass Conference.

Also here is one links supervisor, John K. Campbell, of the Royal & Ancient Golf Club, Saint Andrews, Scotland.

The superintendents are here seeking ways to make their golf courses more beautiful and popular with their members.

Campbell doesn't have that problem. In the world of golf, Saint Andrews is sacred ground.

A bald, stocky, red-faced man, Campbell looks after the very cradle of golf. He supervises the maintenance of four courses, Eden, Jubilee, the New Course and the Old Course.

Since the records only go back to the 15th Century, nobody knows precisely how long the old course has been in existence.

"You know, I've seen American visitors come to Saint Andrews, walk down the steps to the No. 1 tee and bow down and kiss the turf," says Campbell, who delights in telling his stories.

"Just recently," he said, "I saw an American leave the clubhouse with only a driver in his hand. When he got to the No. 1 tee, he took off his top coat and suit coat and piled them in a neat bundle.

"Then, he teed up his ball and drove it down the middle. He slipped on his suit coat and his top coat and walked off the course, saying, 'I hit a golf ball at Saint Andrews. Now, I can die when I go back to the states tomorrow with my wife and children.'"

Campbell has a 50-man crew to maintain the four courses, but his budget for equipment and maintenance is roughly $8,000, about a tenth of what is spent on the finer country clubs in America.

But Saint Andrews is almost in its natural state, and Campbell admits that "manicuring" is an American invention. However, he mows the green every day, just like the Americans.

And contrary to the old golf course tales, sheep do not solve the grass cutting job at Saint Andrews.

"We don't have any sheep there, unless they're back in the wilderness," he said.

He estimates that 123,000 rounds of golf were played at Saint Andrews last year, but, compared to American standards, the green fees are trifling.

The local residents pay only $7 a year, while guest fees are about $1.50 American for 18 holes.

There's no pro or golf shop. If a golfer wants to purchase clubs or equipment, he can go into town.

And that's not too far from the course. The 18th green of the Old Course is in the middle of town. When the late Tony Lema won the 1964 British Open on the Old Course, he said it was like finishing the round in his parlor back home.

Campbell says the pros will play the same course the home folks play, except the tees will be moved back 50 yards to stretch the course to 6,936 yards.

The Cooper Peak ski flying hill, the first of its kind in this hemisphere and only one of four in the world, will be the site of the first ski flying meet to be held the last week in February. National and international skiers are expected

Gray Runs Dash In :05.2; Just Short of Mark

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The loudest roar from the fans in a long night at the Omaha Federation Indoor Track meet Monday came for Minnesota junior Tim Heikkile.

The Gopher star cleared seven feet in the high jump on his last try. It was the third time he had made that height in his career.

Mel Gray of Missouri made the night's highlight as he came within a tenth of a second of the world's record in the 50-yard dash.

Gray's time was :05.2. The all-conference flanker for Missouri's Big Eight co-champion football team led Southern Illinois' Ivory Crockett by a tenth of a second.

In team competition, the Nebraska Cornhuskers took first place in both the mile and two-mile relays. They ran the mile in 3:23.2, and the two-mile in 7:45.7.

Drake finished second in the two-mile, Missouri in the mile event.

In other events, Phil Reeves of Kansas leaped 24-2 1/2 in the long jump to beat Nebraska's Eric Heeter.

Colorado had two winners: Mike Wedman who jumped 16-6 in the pole vault, and Marcus Walker who finished the high hurdles in :06.0.

Missouri's Mike Kelly ran the two-mile event in 9:02.2, while teammate Mark Wilson polished off the 880-yard run in 1:56.1.

Schranz Can Get In Lead

VAL GARDENA, Italy (AP) — Austrian veteran Karl Schranz led competitors into the second heat of the men's giant slalom at the World Alpine ski championships today seeking a victory that would give him the world slalom title and the lead in the World Cup standings.

A victory would mean immediate revenge for the Lion of St. Anton who was jeered by the crowd as he withdrew from the men's special slalom after missing a gate on Sunday, in a black day for the whole Austrian team.

Schranz is third in the World Cup standings with 123 points, behind Patrick Ruess of France and Gustavo Thoeni of Italy who share the lead with 140. By winning, Schranz would jump to 143 points.

The 31-year-old Schranz will have to fight off the competition of teammate Werner Bleiner, of the strong Swiss team and of special slalom world champion, Jean-Noel Augert of France, to win.

Schranz and his determined Austrian teammates struck back at the favored French with a clear-cut victory in the giant slalom Monday.

Besides a victory in the giant slalom, Swiss skier Dumeng Giovanoli, 3rd, was seeking the first place in the combined standings, a title many predicted would not slip out of his hands after his performances in the first three days of competition.

But Augert, who led the French triumph in the special slalom, was after Giovanoli's same goal. The 20-year-old tousle-haired skier from La Toussuire, the only survivor of his team among the first 10, placed fourth Monday.

New Mark Established By Bobby

BOSTON (AP) — Most everyone can tell you about the National Hockey League records set by Bobby Orr, but there's one tucked away in the annals of professional hockey that even the young Boston Bruin Superstar could have trouble remembering.

But Orr's coach, Harry Sinden, remembers.

That dusty old mark was the most assists in a single professional hockey season by a defenseman. It was established way back in the 1961-62 season by none other than Sinden.

He was playing for the old Kingston Frontenacs of the now-defunct Eastern Professional Hockey League and racked up 61 assists during the season.

Most fans forgot the mark as Orr set NHL assist records this year and launched an assault on the goal record, but sports editor Ron Brown of the Kingston Whig-Standard dug it up.

He mentioned it to Sinden last week and the Boston coach had even forgotten it.

"Hey is that right?" Sinden asked. "Does that thing still stand. That's interesting ... very interesting ... wait till I tell Bobby. You know I may even have to bench him now."

But Sinden did not bench Orr and Sunday night he picked up an assist as the Bruins thumped the St. Louis Blues 7-1. That brought his total to 62 for the season, surpassing Sinden's record by one.

Barclay Plager, playing for the Omaha Knights of the Central Professional League, also set up 61 goals in the 1963-64 season, but now Orr holds the mark by himself.

Pilots Set Meeting For Today

CHICAGO (AP) — American League baseball owners meet Tuesday and it could either be three-strikes-and-you're-out or Seattle will be able to keep the Pilots.

Seattle has been given two reprieves to straighten out the financial difficulties of the Pilots and a decision on the matter is expected in this third and probably final meeting.

If the difficulties are not solved, chances are the franchise will be shifted to either Milwaukee or to Dallas-Ft. Worth.

Hotelman Edward Carlson, heading a group intent on keeping the team in Seattle, appears confident of raising the necessary money to purchase the team from its founders, William Daley of Cleveland and Dewey Soriano of Seattle.

Carlson reportedly has been assured of a $3.5 million loan from the Bank of California.

The recall of such a loan is what originally put the franchise in financial difficulties.

Carlson also has the backing of a large group of Seattle businessmen whose loans, pledges and partnership purchases would reach the $9 million needed to keep the franchise.

The $9 million figure was established by the league to prevent a bidding war between Seattle, Milwaukee and Dallas-Ft. Worth.

Going into Tuesday's meeting, chances appeared excellent that Seattle will retain the Pilots. However, the owners have made preparations to extend the meeting through Wednesday, presumably to decide on a franchise shift if Seattle efforts fail.

Bruins Top List Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA maintained its commanding lead and top-ranked teams held firm through the first six positions in the weekly Associated Press major college basketball poll.

The unbeaten Bruins, named No. 1 a week ago by unanimous vote of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters across the country, received 27 of 28 first place ballots in Monday's poll. Second-ranked South Carolina drew the other first place vote and trailed UCLA 540-476 in total points.

Kentucky remained No. 3, St. Bonaventure No. 4, North Carolina State No. 5, and New Mexico State No. 6. Once-beaten Jacksonville, which won three games last week, moved up one spot to No. 7 and Pennsylvania, the Ivy League leader, jumped two places to No. 8.

North Carolina, beaten last Saturday by Wake Forest, slipped from seventh to ninth and Florida State grabbed the No. 10 spot.

Marquette, ninth last week tumbled to 12th following a one-point, double overtime loss to Notre Dame. Drake was 11th, Davidson 13th, Iowa 14th, Houston 15th, Notre Dame 16th, Western Kentucky 17th, Southern California 18th, Columbia 19th and Georgia 20th.

The Irish were new members of the Top Twenty, as were Western Kentucky and Georgia. Illinois, Kansas State and Villanova dropped out of the rankings after setbacks in last week's play.

S-C Freshmen Split Games at Boonville

By BRAD VERMAAS

BOONVILLE — Smith-Cotton's freshmen teams journeyed to Boonville Monday night and came home with a split in the two games as the "A" team lost 49-28 and the "B" team was victorious 29-24. The victory gave the "B" team an 8-1 record for the year and the "A" team now stands at 4-6.

Failure to convert free throws cost the "A" team their game as they sank only 6 of 30 shots for 20 per cent compared to the Pirates 21 of 40 for 52 per cent.

Boonville broke on top 11-6 after one quarter and was never headed. It was 26-11 at halftime and 36-20 after three periods. The Pirates' Pliffer led all scorers with 25 points converting 13 of 13 charity tosses. Keith Crowder led the Tigers with eight points followed by Warren Robinson with six, John Butler with five, and R. W. Madison with four. Kim Anderson led Tiger rebounders with nine followed closely by Butler with eight.

Jim Estes led the "B" team to victory with 10 points and five rebounds. C. E. Baldwin picked up nine points and Kenny Cole sank seven. Cole also had six rebounds.

The "B" team had to come from behind in the second half to record their eighth victory. The Pirates led at halftime 11-10 but the Tigers had forged on top after three periods, 18-16.

Both teams set action again this Thursday night as they take on Knob Noster in the Smith-Cotton gym. The first game starts at 6:15.

India's Social Program Receives Crushing Blow

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's seven-month-old bank nationalization law, the keystone of Mrs. Gandhi's Socialist program.

The prime minister was out of New Delhi on a political trip, but the government said a presidential ordinance would be issued to protect the bank takeover until Parliament can pass a new law at its session beginning Feb. 20. It said both the ordinance and the new law would be without the clauses to which the court objected.

In a 10-1 decision the court declared that the law violated the constitutional guarantee of compensation, discriminated against the banks and violated the rights of the former owners to carry on business.

The court also held invalid all actions taken by the government in carrying out the bank nationalization law.

Mrs. Gandhi nationalized the 14 leading Indian banks by presidential ordinance last July in the opening gun of a campaign aimed at revitalizing the ruling Congress party through a program of vigorous Socialist reform.

Within three weeks Parliament adopted legislation making the ordinance permanent, and acting President M. Hidayatullah signed it. Mrs. Gandhi used the nationalization as proof to the Indian masses that she was working to better their lives. The nationalization was also a major factor in her battle with conservative leaders of the Congress party, which split the party last November.

The law was challenged in the courts last October by R. C. Cooper, a former bank director, and T. M. Gurbaxani, a former shareholder, who said their constitutional rights had been violated. Hearings in the case went on until Jan. 7.

The court ruled that the law discriminated against the 14 banks because other Indian banks and foreign banks were not nationalized and were permitted to carry on their business as usual.

Movie Fans Torn With Decisions

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Movie fans in the television audience had been spared until recently, those tearing decisions: The three networks kept out of each other's way with their feature film reruns.

ABC had Wednesday and Sunday nights; NBC Monday, Tuesday and Saturday; CBS Thursday and Friday.

ABC, which had been having a tough time with a lot of its programs, recently broke the gentlemenly mold. It moved its Wednesday night movie to Mondays, and gave it a half-hour start on NBC's movie.

This competitive scheduling may have caused some big living room arguments this week. ABC's feature was a dreadful opus called "The Oscar," but it had a lot of stars, a plot like a nightmarish combination of "Bracken's World" and "Pal Joey," and was as titillating as a movie magazine. NBC showed "The Satan Bug," a science fiction thriller, second rate but with appeal to a male audience.

When the film is attractive, ABC's audience-grabbing device probably will work. In ABC's other midseason switches, only two of the five new programs appear to be winning passing grades with the audience.

"The Johnny Cash Show" was 14th on a list of 89 programs in the most recent Nielsen report, and "The Nanny and the Professor" was about half way down the list. "The Englebert Humperdink Show," Pat Paulsen's comedy program and "Paris 7000" were at the bottom of the list.

Robert Crean, author of tonight's "CBS Playhouse" — 9:30-11 EST — has written a play about freedom—at least personal freedom—in his "Day Before Sunday."

The play, seen in a preview, is an impressive vehicle for Uta Hagen, a fine and sensitive actress. She plays a spinster career woman who, in middle life, has dedicated herself to taking care of her family. She has made a home for a sister who from birth has been little more than a vegetable. She has loaned money endlessly to another sister and a habitually over extended brother-in-law. She has paid for a private school education for a niece.

The catalyst is a man of about her age who is flying East to attend his son's graduation from the school the niece attends. As the couple's relationship develops and the family makes more money demands on her, the emptiness and loneliness of her life become more evident.

Martin Balsam, playing this man "who tried to live everybody's life for them" tries to get the woman to start living her own life and to cease meddling in others' affairs. He made the character seem very real.

It is a perceptive, adult and thoroughly entertaining drama.

Newspaper Mistake

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A box on the left-hand side of The Daily Californian newspaper at the University of Berkeley campus read, in Chinese characters, "Happy New Year." One on the right read, "Long Live Chairman Mao!"

That wasn't what the one on the right was supposed to read, Editor Joe Pichirallo said Sunday. Students in the Asian Studies Department had been asked to provide Chinese characters reading "Year of the Dog," he said, and he learned about the substitution too late to change it.

Beaver Dam Wins

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The county commissioners wanted to lower a beaver dam, but decided instead to raise the roadway that had been flooded.

The Mobile County Commission yielded to a delegation of angry nature lovers Monday and changed the decision.

Members of the delegation said lowering the dam would destroy the haven for beavers and other animals.

The dam in the western part of the county had caused some local flooding during rainy weather.

Kidnaper Is Told Of His Punishment

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Wilmer Lee Stebens, 40, was told Monday that he could receive life imprisonment under federal law because he took a kidnap victim across a state line and harmed her.

Stebens pleaded guilty to a federal kidnap charge and will be sentenced later.

After escaping from the Kansas prison, Stebens seized a 21-year-old woman student at the University of Kansas at knife-point. The woman said he forced her to drive him to a point near Clinton, Mo., then back to Kansas City, Kan., where he released her.

Stebens was captured near Greensburg, Kan., after a chase Oct. 17.

At the time of his escape he was serving a life term for the 1949 slaying of a Garden City, Kan., man.

No Inquest Planned In Shooting Deaths

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — No inquest is planned, Dr. Richard Johnson, Boone County coroner, said, in the shotgun deaths of a Columbia man and woman.

The victims were Miss Carol Wheeler, 24, and N.R. Garrett Jr., 40.

Dr. Johnson said it appeared that Garrett had shot Miss Wheeler and then turned the weapon on himself. The bodies were found Monday in Garrett's apartment when a maid was unable to get anyone to answer the door.

Man is Wounded During Episode

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Gerald Lee Rowland, 19, of Independence, Mo., was shot in the shoulder Monday night while allegedly harassing a witness who was to testify against him, police said.

Rowland was scheduled to appear in Jackson County Circuit Court today on a burglary charge.

The witness, Charles McGuire, told police Rowland had come to his house three times Monday harassing him.

Then Rowland and five other men came to the house Monday night in two cars, McGuire said, and shots were fired at his home.

Police said Robert Griffith, who lives with McGuire, ran out with a .22 rifle and grappled with Rowland. A weapon fired during the struggle and Rowland was wounded slightly in the shoulder, police said. The bullet was removed at a hospital and Rowland was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Moon Mission Produces Some Medical Mysteries

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Man's second moon landing expedition was marked by medical mysteries which may shape future lunar missions.

Dr. Charles Berry, chief astronaut doctor, said Monday the Apollo 12 astronauts experienced medical phenomena never before noted in more than 5,600 hours of man in space.

The astronauts, he said, observed brilliant flashes of light when they closed their eyes in a darkened portion of the spacecraft.

He said the lights seen only when the astronauts closed their eyes, are thought to be caused by charged particles or rays from the sun or from space penetrating the astronauts' eyelids.

Astronauts Charles A. Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean also experienced sensitivity to lunar material. Dust from the moon, Dr. Berry said, caused their lungs and noses to become congested.

Dr. Berry noted that members of the Apollo 11 crew, also exposed to dust, reported no irritation.

He said more stringent efforts will be made on future moon landings to keep the interiors of spacecraft free of the black lunar dust.

The Apollo 12 crewmen also reported visible body changes during the early part of their trip.

Berry said the astronauts observed that each seemed to have "a fuller face" during the first 24 hours of flight.

He said they also noted that they had reddened eyes and flushed faces during that period.

Berry attributed the changes to pooling of fluids in the head, apparently caused by the absence of gravity. He said the effects disappeared as the heart apparently adjusted to decreased gravity.

Organisms normally on the skin also reacted differently on Apollo 12 than on previous space flights, Dr. Berry said.

Woman is Indicted On a Drug Charge

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Clay County grand jury has indicted Miss Susan Calkins, 22, on a charge of marijuana possession and she has been released on $4,000 bond.

She is the daughter of Myron Calkins, Kansas City public works director, but lives in an apartment instead of the family home.

While Calkins was out of the city last October, police found 500 pounds of freshly harvested marijuana and processing equipment at the home, and arrested two men.

Miss Calkins said she had given the house key to two men, Robert O. Walton, 33, and John Breckenridge, 22, who had asked to store furniture there.

She told police she knew nothing about marijuana found at the house.

Beauty Salon Week

Mayor Ralph Walker Monday afternoon proclaimed the week of Feb. 8 as "Beauty Salon Week" in Sedalia to correspond with the 20th annual National Beauty Salon Week, being observed by more than 60,000 members of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. Witnessing Walker's signing of the proclamation is John Strine, owner of Mr. John's Beauty Salon, and a past state president of the Missouri Cosmetologists Association. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

Hot line answers questions, looks into complaints, solves problems and generally serves readers and protects their interests. Write Hot Line, The Sedalia Democrat-Capitol, Seventh and Massachusetts, Sedalia, Mo., 65301, or call 826-1000 between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Hot Line will appear as often as necessary to serve our readers.

All calls and letters to Hot Line must include name, address and phone number of inquirers. Names will not be used but are needed should additional information be required to answer questions.

Q — Why don't the people who shoot the birds out of the trees on the courthouse lawn pick them up afterwards so that they don't make people sick when they walk by? — P.Z.

A — Eastern County judge E. L. (Red) Birdsong told Hot Line that no one has been shooting birds, but that an unusual number of starlings have been dying on the courthouse grounds. The janitor who usually cleans the lawns twice a week has been sick recently, but Judge Birdsong said extra measures would be taken to keep the grounds free of the dead birds.

Q — Since we have no guarantee from any airline to service Sedalia and it appears that the matching funds from the government are not available, why do we continue with the seemingly money-wasted airport expansion? Why don't we revert the money invested here to something sound, like a junior high school or a larger hospital? — R.C.

A — Airport board chairman Dr. Holmes Wilbur says a bill in Congress allocating large amounts of federal money for airports throughout the country stands an "excellent" chance of passage. Funds, which could cover 75 per cent of airport expansion cost, should become available within the year, he added. Also, there still exists a possibility that a major airline will serve Sedalia, he said.

As for the legal aspects of what you suggest, city counselor Bob Fritz told Hot Line that legally the city cannot divert the bond funds to any other purpose than that for which they were passed. Bond issues for such projects as you mention would have to be presented and passed on their own merits, he said.

Q — The city park department pays a business rate for electricity of 3 cents per kilowatt hour. This is the highest rate paid. Why? — G.W.

A — Clinton Black, district manager of Missouri Public Service Co., said city departments pay a "municipal rate" of 3 cents per kilowatt hour, which is cheaper than the general service (commercial) rate. The latter rate begins at 10 cents for the first 40 hours and continues down a descending scale, with the 3-cent rate not reached until considerably down the line.

Television Is Praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the cabdriver who digs Bach to the postman who revels in Italian opera, noncommercial television is dishing out culture to the common man who can't afford formal concert halls. Congress has been told.

"Public television is one of the most impressive and influential artistic forces on the American cultural scene," John W. Macy Jr., president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, told a House education subcommittee Monday.

Macy, pushing a bill to provide $40 million for the National Endowment for the Arts in fiscal 1971, said a recent survey showed public television's audience numbers 45 million persons, enough "to fill every concert hall and theater in the United States with quite a few million standees."

The key thing, Macy said is public TV is bringing opera and theater to those who can't afford the fancy clothes to attend the concert hall.

Macy said a Boston cab driver told him that the city's public TV station, WGBH, puts on his favorite programs, opera and classical music. No, he told Macy, he'd never actually been to a concert because "he didn't have the fancy clothes."

The national endowment's recommended 1971 budget of $40 million includes some money to help public television be more creative.

Public broadcasting offers a national audience for local and regional talents, he said, gives nationally recognized artists a regional exposure, and fosters experimentation in the art of the media.

Will Pump Uphill

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Water will soon be running uphill here—in fact, 1,926 feet straight up.

It's part of the $2.8 billion California water project which will ship water 450 miles from the Sacramento-San Joaquin river delta to parched Southern California areas beginning in 1971.

When completed this year, the Edmonston pumping plant will pump 31,000 gallons of water per second 1,926 feet from the floor of the San Joaquin Valley over the Tehachapi Mountains.
